Mountaineering, also called mountain climbing, the sport of attaining, was born when a young Genevese scientist, Horace-Bénédict de Saussure, on a first visit to their attention to the Andes Mountains of South America, the North American Rocky Mountains, the Caucasus at the western edge of Asia, Africa’s peaks, and